Around the World

by Paula Morrow

- 1 “No one but a man can do this,” the business manager of the World, a New York newspaper, said to the young woman. The year was 1888. A popular book at the time told about a character who traveled around the world in 80 days. Now Nellie Bly, a young reporter for the newspaper, wanted to do it in real life.
- 2 “Very well,” said Nellie. “Start the man, and I’ll start the same day for some other newspaper and beat him.”
- 3 In those days it was very unusual for a woman to travel alone. But Nellie Bly was an unusual woman. Her real name was Elizabeth Jane Cochran. When she was 20, she wrote a fiery letter to the editor of the Pittsburgh Dispatch. The editor was so impressed with her letter that he offered her a job as a writer.
- 4 It wasn’t considered “proper” to use a woman’s name in a newspaper. So the editor signed Elizabeth’s work Nellie Bly, a name from a popular song.
- 5 Back then, women were only supposed to write about things considered to be “women’s topics,” such as fashion and society. But Nellie had other ideas. She reported on issues that were important, even controversial. Newspaper readers were fascinated—but they didn’t believe that Nellie Bly was really a woman. They thought men were writing the articles!

controversial = a topic that causes an argument

GO ON

6 After Nellie threatened to make the trip for another newspaper, her editor gave in and allowed her to do it for the World. One year after asking to do the trip, Nellie set out. Traveling east across the Atlantic, Nellie took just one bag in order to move quickly. As she traveled, she wrote. She telegraphed her articles about people and places to the newspaper. Schoolchildren followed her route across Europe and Asia. Geography became a national fad as readers tracked her around the world.

telegraphed = a way to send messages to a faraway place

7 On day 68 of her trip, Nellie reached San Francisco. Quickly, she dashed across the country on a train hired by her newspaper. She reached New York in 4½ days.

8 She met her challenge! Along the way, every train stop was a “maze of happy greetings, happy wishes, congratulating telegrams, fruit, flowers, loud cheers, wild hurrahs, rapid hand-shaking,” she wrote. While traveling through France, Nellie was thrilled to meet Jules Verne, author of the book that inspired her trip, Around the World in 80 Days.

9 Nellie Bly beat the 80-day goal. She also invented a new style of journalism. She reported to her readers what she saw, thought, and felt during her adventure. She also proved that a woman is as competent and resourceful as a man. Her journey around the world was a journey toward equal opportunity for both women and men.

competent = capable

resourceful = skilled at solving problems

Mouse Deer and the Tigers

an Indonesian folktale retold by Marilyn Bolchunas

1 King Tiger thought he was the greatest tiger in the world. While I do not know if that was true, he was certainly the greediest. One day he said to himself, “I wonder if there is tasty food nearby on the Island of Borneo.”

2 He called three of his strongest tigers and said to them, “I have a job for you. You must swim to Borneo and ask their tiger king for food. Tell them the King of All Tigers demands it. If they don’t agree, we will attack.”

3 The King pulled out one of his large whiskers. “Show him this and he will see what kind of tiger he is dealing with.”

4 The three tigers swam over to Borneo, roaring all the way. Now, there were no tigers on Borneo, but all the animals hid when they heard the strange sounds and splashes. All except for Mouse Deer. He didn’t hear them coming because he was busy eating his lunch of tender grass. Suddenly he looked up and saw three pairs of golden eyes staring at him.

5 “Brave little morsel, isn’t he?” said one of the tigers. “We have a message for your tiger king. Where is he?”

6 Mouse Deer thought, We have no tiger king. We have no tigers. But if I tell them that, I will be lunch for these tigers. I must think fast or, or . . . I will be lunch for these tigers.

GO ON

- 7 He thought fast.
- 8 “I can take your message to our tiger king,” he said. “But you look tired. Rest in the shade, and I will get him.”
- 9 “Good idea,” said the biggest tiger. “Tell him that he must give us food, or we will attack. Show him King Tiger’s whisker.”
- 10 The whisker was so big it made Mouse Deer tremble. But he bravely hurried away with it in his mouth.
- 11 If I promise them food, they may eat me, he thought. What should I do?
- 12 He bounded on. Finally he had an idea. He found his friend Porcupine. “Friend, the King of All Tigers wants to attack Borneo,” he said. “He says we won’t be able to fight him. Would you please let me have one of your quills?”
- quill = a thick hair with a sharp point
- 13 “Gladly,” said Porcupine.
- 14 Mouse Deer waited awhile so that the tigers would think he had traveled far. When he came back they said, “Well?”
- 15 “O, Great Tigers,” said Mouse Deer, “when I reached our king he was sharpening his claws between two mountains. I gave him your message. He said, ‘Good. It is too quiet around here. I’d be happy to fight that tiger. Send him over.’ Then he pulled out one of his whiskers for you to give your king.”
- 16 The tigers were astonished. They had never seen a whisker as big and thick as that. They turned and left for their long swim back.
- 17 Mouse Deer pranced off on his tiny hoofs.
- 18 As soon as the tigers reached their island, they went to the King of All Tigers.
- 19 “What took you so long?” he roared.

GO ON

- 20 “Well,” one tiger said, “the King of Borneo looks forward to fighting the King of All Tigers. He sends his whisker.”
- 21 The King stared at it for a while. Then he spoke, “I have been thinking while you were gone. We should demand food from the Island of the Elephants instead of the Island of Borneo.”
- 22 And that is why, even today, there are no tigers on Borneo. There are plenty of mouse deer, but no tigers.

Theo is in a boat named “Fleet Felix” with Albert Einstein, a very famous scientist. Einstein speaks first.

The Day I Rescued Einstein’s Compass

by Shulamith Levey Oppenheim

- 1 “When I was five years old, I was quite ill. I had to stay in bed for many days. My father gave me this compass.” He peered at me. “You know what a compass is, of course?” I nodded. “Good.” He continued, “It was the first compass I had ever seen. There was the needle, under glass, all alone, pointing north no matter which way I turned the compass.”
- 2 I took a deep breath. “Because the needle is magnetic, and there is a magnet at the North Pole that attracts the needle.”
- 3 My sailing partner raised his bushy eyebrows. “Nearly correct. There are two magnetic poles, north and south. So far away. And there, on the palm of my hand, was my compass, always pointing north! For me, it was the greatest mystery I could imagine. And so I decided, then and there, that I would learn all about the forces in the universe that we cannot see. For I certainly could not . . .”
- 4 At that moment a large motorboat zoomed past us, stirring up the water into high waves. One of them hit Fleet Felix smack against the side, knocking the compass from the professor’s hand, right into the water!
- 5 He stared at his empty palm. “The compass, Theo. It is gone! Overboard?” Suddenly there was so much sadness in his eyes. “I should hate to lose it. And I cannot swim very well . . . and my eyesight is not good . . .” His voice trailed off, and he was looking far into space.
- 6 But I could swim! In a split second I dropped anchor into the water to keep the boat in place. I pulled off my life jacket. The waves had quieted down now. The compass would float. If I were lucky.

GO ON

7 I jumped into the water.

8 Then I started swimming farther away from the boat. Under and under and round and round. No compass. I had to find it! Herr Professor Einstein might be the most famous man alive right now, but he was once five years old, and his father had given him a compass that he had treasured all these years. I thought about the splendid binoculars my parents had given me and how I would feel if I lost them.

Herr = a German word for “Mr.”

9 I made another dive under the boat. As I came up for air, I felt something ever so gently hit my cheek. It was the compass, bobbing alongside Fleet Felix, just waiting to be rescued! Clutching it in my left hand, I grabbed hold of the boat with my right. Professor Einstein’s eyes were closed.

10 He opened his eyes. “So,” he said with a smile, “this is why I became a physicist,” continuing as if nothing had happened. “As you know, a physicist studies the forces in nature that we cannot know directly, only we know they are there from what we observe, like the compass needle or . . . ,” he paused.

11 “Or gravity?” I offered, a bit tentatively.

12 “Bravo, young man. Or gravity. All these forces keep our planet running quite smoothly most of the time. And thank you, dear Theo. For me, you are the most famous boy alive!”

13 His eyes were merry again. I was still trying to catch my breath, but I had to ask another question. “Would you say it is because of the compass that you are now the most famous man alive?”

GO ON

14 He sat very still. “The compass was my first mystery, and all my life I have worked to solve mysteries.” He put the compass in his pocket—the one with the hole in it. “And I am not the most famous man alive, no matter what your dear father says. But you are surely the bravest and kindest boy I know.”

Meet Hannah Wynne: Teen Storyteller

by Kathiann M. Kowalski

- 1 Like most kids, Hannah Wynne has always loved hearing stories. But Hannah doesn't just listen. At age 18, Hannah is already a professional storyteller.
- 2 As a little girl, Hannah told stories to family members in Valley City, Ohio. Later, she shared stories with friends during school recess. "I loved giving oral book reports," adds Hannah. Often Hannah dressed as a book character to tell her books' stories to the class.
- 3 When Hannah was 15, a professional storyteller named Janelle Reardon performed at a cousin's birthday party. Hannah knew then that she wanted to become a storyteller, too. Soon afterward, Janelle began coaching Hannah. Then Hannah began performing.
- 4 "All my stories right now are personal stories," says Hannah. "Most of them are funny." Most of Hannah's stories are about eight minutes long. And most come from things that happened when Hannah was around 6 years old. But the stories aren't just memories, she says. "Our lives aren't like movies or books. We're not moving toward one goal."
- 5 Instead, starting with real events, Hannah makes up stories with a beginning, middle, and end. Even her funny stories often have a lesson. In "The Revenge of Dr. Seuss," young Hannah wanted to hear Fox in Socks over and over. But her mom was tired of that book. She had already read it many times for Hannah's older brother and sisters.
- 6 Hannah told that story at the National Youth Storytelling Showcase in Pigeon Forge, Tennessee, in 2007. With it, she won the title of High School Division Torchbearer. Hannah also met other young storytellers from across the nation. “The oldest was 18, and the youngest was 7 that year,” says Hannah. “Everyone was fantastic. And I learned so much from everyone.”

7 Today, Hannah tells stories at schools, libraries, recreation centers, and storytelling festivals. After college, she hopes to be a professional writer and continue storytelling.

8 Hannah especially loves when people laugh along with her. Her stories often remind people about events in their own lives. At its heart, storytelling is about sharing a story or an experience and connecting with the listeners. “The best way to tell people what storytelling is,” Hannah says, “is to tell them a story.”

Reaching for the Top

by Kassandra Radomski

- 1 For the past six years, Jordan Romero has been chasing a dream. That dream has taken him to the top of the world's highest mountains. The dream came true when the California teenager stepped onto the peak of Mount Vinson Massif in Antarctica.
- 2 On that day—December 24, 2011—Jordan became the youngest person to have climbed the tallest mountain on each of the seven continents. These mountains are known as the “seven summits.” (A summit or peak is the highest point of a mountain.)
- 3 It all began when Jordan was 9 years old. He became fascinated by a school mural that showed the seven summits. Jordan had never climbed a mountain before. But he told his dad that he wanted to climb them ALL!
- 4 His dad, an experienced mountaineer, was very supportive. In fact, Jordan's dad and stepmom trained him in top-level mountaineering and climbed every mountain with him. As part of “Team Jordan,” they also became the first family to climb the seven summits together.
- 5 Training to climb the highest mountains in the world involves a lot of hard work. But Jordan has always been very physically active—it's just the way he lives. Still, there were times when he thought, “Yeah, I want to be done.”
- 6 But he refused to give up. When others thought he was too young to climb Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain, he just became more determined. He recalls thinking at the time, “All you naysayers, I'll show you.” He sure did. When he was 13, he became the youngest person to scale Mount Everest.
